WE have a strong suspicion that the Chinese Government will view with some little apprehension the doings of the Anti-Opium Society at home, of which we give a short account further on General denunciations of the traffic suited the Chinese admirably as they were a standing grievance against foreign nations but when the kind of "tall talk " which they have for so long indulged vesterday, cutting him above the right eye. in seems likely to take the form of a complete denunciation of the fields which brings in so handsome a sum annually to the Imperial revenues of China, we imagine the Mandarins, willing to sow the wind, will be rather scared at the whirlwind which they seem to have raised. When the Opium question was under discussion with a view to the revision of the Treaty, the only point which Chinese made was a demand for in increase in the revenue; and this fact is significant as an admission on their part that they are actuated mainly by fiscal considerations in the opposition which has been made to the trade. It may be confidently asserted that the suppression of the trade in foreign Opium would not do away with the traffic in the drug. Opium has been grown in China itself for ages, and has been largely imported overland from India from a time long previous to the advest of foreigners to the country. Chinese Opium was a familiar article of trade at Canton from the earliest days of our intercourse with that place; and it is proved beyond the possibility of dispute that more than a hundred and thirty years ago Opium smoking was ordinarily resorted to in the country, by the fact that an allusion to the practice is made in a out of employment named Wong Akwong, with Chinese book which is known to be of that antiquity. These facts are sufficient to show | The defendant was se that Opium smoking has long been an established institution in China, and that the foreign opium trade, concerning which so much is said and written, is in reality only an incidental feature in the matter. possibility of suppressing the traffic, and the proclamations which are from time to time fulminated against it are known to designed for the most part simply as means of obtaining additional squeezes why should be now have to go to gao! ? out of the cultivators. Ag, however, the in this manner go into the pockets of the local officials, effect of putting an end to the traffic in foreign drug would morely be that there would be an increase in the local production, and in the importations from India by the old route overland into Yunnan, and that the Imperial Authorities would lose the taxa-- local officials would obtain large additions tainly not be satisfactory to the Peking

MECHANICAL HUMOUR.

(Saturday Review.) Of all things, one, would say that humour

a sense of humofr tries to be fanny by imitating some favourite form of facetiousness. And yet the sitempt is made so frequently and system matically wat the performance must evidently expression of strong animal spirits, and is compatible with the utmost extravagance of language, can be tolerably reproduced by much courser workmanship; for it implies, when it is genuine, not a delicate balancing of varying intellectual-moods, but simply a hearty outburst of unrestrainable fun. Anybody can imitate more or less that kind of humour which in its extreme forms provokes a horse laugh; but it is not so easy to imitate the fine semiironical smile of a cultivated and neute intelligence. The imitators of Dickens, beginning with Dickens himself, have accordingly been innumerable, and at one time were a real plague of literature. Their methods are too familiar to need description. The short, jerky sentence, the use of proposterous proper names, the incessant dwelling abou some little catchword, the use of an elaborate paraphrase to describe some familiar object, are forms of would be wit which have long cented to be tolerable. Who has not shuddered on opening some new book and sceing a tail described as a candal appendage ? Such a phrase is the mark of the beast, and would justify us in sending the book to the common hangman if that person continued to exercise his old function. Of late years unother fushion has prevailed which is already a nuisance in need of suppression. American humour was once a very genuine and characteristic product. The bumour, for example, of the "Biglow Papers was singularly fresh, and has preserved the book in spite of the fact that muny of its topieshas led to a host of imitators, and, as in other quass, the difference; between the Brummagemerticle and that upon which it is moulded is that, sion of a particular type of intellect, the sham

THE ANTI-OPIUM SOCIETY On the 13th November a number of ger tlemen met for breakfast at the London Tavern, at the invitation of the Executive Com-mittee of the new Association for opposing the Opium Trade. About seventy five were prebent, including Mr. Alderman M'Arthur, M.P., Dr. J. P. Nowman, Chaplain to the Senate, U.S.A., Gen. Alexander, Donald Matheeon, Thomas Hanbury, H. Bilton, Rev. W. Braden, Dr. James Legge, N. Achoy, of Hongkong, and representatives of the various Missionary Societies, Dr. Mullens, E. J. Parke, E. Hutchinson, &c. After breakfast Alderman Marthur was called to the chair, and in a vigorous address pointed out the injustice of the oping trade and arged that the matter had been too long neglected in and out of Parliament, and that now we ought to wake up the conscience of the country to grapple with the evil. The temporary, Secretary, Mr. F. S. Turner, then read letters expressive of their sympathy with the objects of the meeting, from Edward Pease, of Darlington, Henry Richard, M.P., and J. Hudson Taylor, of the China Inland, Mission. Letters from Dr. Duff, Charles Thompson, and other gentlemen were mentioned, but for lack of time not read. The Secretary then tend a brief paper to give an account of the present state of the opium trade to those riends present who were not intormed as to it details. He explained the production in India the Bombay pass duty, the nature of the monopoly and its contribution to the Indian revenue. He pointed out how the Indian Government had clearly and emphatically recognised the permittions offects of opium consumption in India, and how the monopoly had been defended on the ground that it is a protection to the natives of India against the fatal: seductions of the drug. IMPERIAL QUARTO. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE

PUNTI AND MANDARIN-PRONUNCIATION. in Anglo-Orinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

HOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous ob jectain machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them are being required. here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exer cises for students of a most instructive nature Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on Billiard Table the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspon in the size of body, thereby effecting a vest economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those ast margine and vacant spaces which ha heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 800,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely re-Ontment Cakes; Breakfast Buns, plain and quires examples to display the various appliwith fruits; Soda Scones; Milk Scones; cations and equivalents of different words which by means of which the score can be marked have one general meaning. Of these examples from the cuebion of the table. Bread; French Bread; Brown Bread; Soda this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary bitherto pub. Price Lists, Catalogues, and all information For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that in reference LANE, CEAWFORD AND CO. to its pages enables a person who under-stands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in HONGKONG, SHANGHAI, AND JAPAN made from PURE FILTERED WATER, without China, and to the natives themselves it or | the use of Ether, Ammonia, or any kind of plains subjects fully with which very few in-PRICE TWO CENTS PER POUND, parties resident in England and interested in Special Agreements made with Steamship China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.
